The Europe dominates the global Craft Beer market and is expected to retain its dominance by 2025

...craft beer is now becoming the choice of Indians'...

India has seen huge increase in craft beer sales, due to consumers' change in taste. India is now a home of approx. than 200 micro breweries.

Today's millennials are no longer satisfied with regular bottled beers. Looking for fresh flavors, fresh tastes, and unique ingredients.

Craft beer sales support local economies including farmers and distributors

Wide range of flavour. There is a beer for every occasion.

Craft Beer made of healthier ingredient and complements well with exotic food category

Craft breweries have a smaller carbon footprint than large scale breweries

...the western culture and the quest for constant wanting something new have led to the huge shift... with millennials sitting on the driving seat.

Customer Segmentation

- With most urban consumers, especially young population, open for experiments and exotic flavours are opting for such products, the country will see a huge growth in the overall category growth.

Growth Factors

- Freshly brewed beer is demonstrating healthy growth. In future due to the higher consumption of beer in pubs/bars/restaurants, the demand for freshly brewed beer is likely to increase.

Changing Preferences

- Demand for Craft beer is driven by health-conscious consumers and moderate drinkers who opt for lower alcohol options for their social interactions both professional and personal.
